from Carraville that of the sunken steamer R. C. Gray all that remained above water had been destroyed by fire. The gorge at Carraville was still solid

Saturday morning. A Pittaburg telegram received last night says:

It is reported from the head waters that the State rivers are rising gradually. The Monougahela at this point is falling The Monongahela at this point is falling slowly; ten feet eight inches at this point at six o'clock. A light driszling rain commenced falling early, and continued until this evening. The wind has veered around northwest and the weather is growing colder. Large quantities of ice still running in the river, but will be in condition to morrow so that some barrers can get out. that some barges can get out.

There are maty towboats and 15,000,-000 bushels of coal to come out from Pittaburg when the water permits. Brown & Jones, the coal dealers here, who lost so heavily by the break-up a week ago, are now supplying steamers at the usual prices, dividing their supply between the boats and city. The Joe Kinney arrived from Cairo before noon with 150 bales of cotton and a large cargo of produce. Yesterday at Cincinnati the river was rising very rapidly, with nineteen feet six inches in the channel; ice floating inches snow fell there and at other points along the Ohio. Regarding the situation at Louisville a dispatch sent from there last night pretty heavy. Weather cloudy: two

There is not so much ice running today. Some heavy cakes are coming down, but the number is rapidly thinning out. The ice runs on the Ken-tucky show below the Towhead, leaving half the river clear on the Indiana side, except a large field along the shore. The terryboat Shalcross this morning broke the ice around the steamers and up to the ferry dock, foot of First street. She will break through the narrow strip of ice left in the morning, and resume her trips. It is estimated $5000 will cover all loss from the ice in this vicinity. A number of coal boats and barges were caught by the towboat Robin, after passing over the falls, and moored at the foot of Sand Island or at New Albany, generally in good condition. Yesterday morning the ice gorge at St. Louis moved again, and again lodged at the Arsenal Island, where the river is narrow, but no damage was done.

The Cheek, as will be seen by her card elsewhere, has entered the trade between this city and [Hale's Point, and will do a general plantation business. She is well adapted to the trade, and OATS-Dull at 44@45c for mixed and choice will undoubtedly make money there.

late hour Wednesday night, having a very good freight, consisting of 1050 barrels of molasses, 2042 bars of rail-road iron, 2023 green hides, 466 barrels of augar, 100 barrels of oranges, 400 barrels of rice, 400 empty beer barrels, 84 sacks of coffee and salt. On account of the intense darkness she was compelled to lay up for the night at the point above town. When in the bend above Grand Gulf, on Tuesday night, she picked up a snag which tore away her guard, the same one which she on this trip had repaired in New Orleans at a cost of $500.

The barges Red Stockings and Clarinda, sunk by the Commonwealth on her way to Memphis through the ice, belonged to Captains Vincent Shinkle and Albert Stein, and were insured in the Kenton Insurance Company-the former for $3000.
